

KROHNE and ENELSAN found a new joint venture in the growth market of Turkey

KROHNE ENELSAN provides optimal process technology solutions for nearly all industries

Within the scope of this year's theme at the Hannover trade fair/Interkama, KROHNE Messtechnik is announcing the founding of a new German-Turkish joint venture. By founding KROHNE ENELSAN Limited Co., KROHNE Messtechnik (in Duisburg) and ENELSAN (in Istanbul) are now putting their more than 30 year long successful cooperation on a new footing. "With this joint venture, we are positioning ourselves in the strategically important Turkish market as a strong partner in industrial measurement technology," says Stephan Neuburger, Managing Director of KROHNE. KROHNE ENELSAN will expand the business in all industrial sectors as a supplier of complete solutions.

The range of products ranges from simple display units to complex measuring systems, which means that customers can get their solutions from one source, from KROHNE ENELSAN. The joint venture will start with six employees, who will be intensively engaged in the Turkish market and who will be able to fall back on KROHNE and ENELSAN service teams for support.

In the medium term, neighboring countries such as Azerbaijan, Turkmenistan or Iraq are also to be supplied from Turkey. The expectations of General Manager Ertan Soylemez for the start-up company are correspondingly high, "We know the Turkish market and that of the neighboring countries very well, thanks to decades of activity. With the new organization, we will be competent all-round suppliers, who can offer the optimal solution for practically any application as well as the expertise of a market leader."

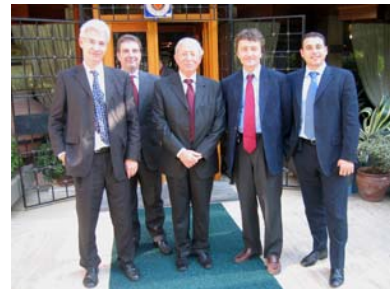

About ENELSAN

Founded in 1975, the company markets high-tech components and services for industrial customers, from engineering to complete systems. In this regard, it has worked together with KROHNE from the outset.
